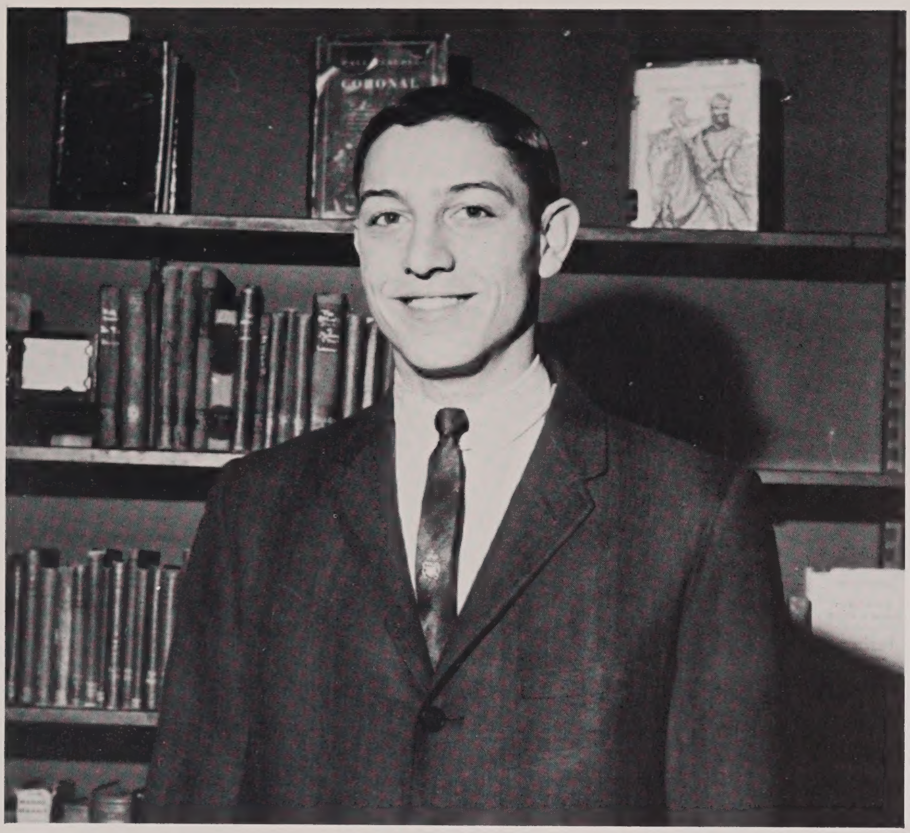
HEAD MASTER'S MESSAGE

The members of the Class of 1964 of Brighton High School will retain many memories, sad or joyful, concerning events that happened in their senior year. We hope most recollections will be happy, but we know that the great tragedy of November 22, 1963 must haunt us as a day of universal sorrow.

Novemeber 22, 1963 was the day the beloved son of Massachusetts fell stricken by an assassin's bullet in Dallas, Texas. It was the day a young Naval hero spilled his life blood on the gown of his fearless young wife as they rode triumphantly through the streets of Dallas. It was the day courageous John F. Kennedy became a martyred President of the United States in the cause of justice and freedom.

Much has been written and spoken about President Kennedy. Brighton High School cherishes the memory of his visits here. The members of the Class of 1964 will remember the day of his death and will benefit by his sacrifices. We hope his deeds will inspire all young Americans both now and in the future to greater heights of service to God and country.



PAUL CEDRONE

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

As graduation day approaches, we will have reached the zenith of our high school careers. It shall be a day long remembered and cherished by all of us, for it signifies a major turning point in our lives. Although we, the graduates to be, await this proud moment in eager anticipation, nevertheless, our thoughts are saddened because we will be leaving a part of ourselves here at the Castle on the Hill.

Upon our departure from Brighton High we must subdue our carefree behavior of youth and go forth as responsible adults ready to seek the knowledge and experience we shall need if we are to become qualified citizens of our great world. As citizens we must accept the responsibility to serve our families, our friends and our country.

The challenges we meet after graduation must be faced and solved by each one of us as individuals; however, I am confident that as mature young adults we will be able to weather any storms that we may encounter in future endeavors because of the fine preparation we have received for the past three years from devoted teachers.

So, if I may, speaking for the Class of 1964, I would like to take this opportunity to thank sincerely the faculty of our school for the inexpressible amount of time and effort they have contributed to us. I would also like to express our deepest and fondest appreciation to Mr. McInerney, our Head Master, for his constant aid and interest in our behalf.

Not forgetting our many parents, relatives and friends, we the Class of 1964 would like to thank them; also our one wish is that we may be able to live up to the high ideals of our parents, friends, and teachers.

LIFE'S ROAD

Soft, the golden light of daybreak
Shines on Graduation Day;
Time has passed as stars at dawning,
Now the parting of the way.

Far, the road we have followed
Traveling in the quest of truth;
Memories of the journey linger,
Mingling with the joys of youth.

Here before us future challenge
Looms in ever upward slopes;
These will be tomorrow's pathways
Reaching to our dreams and hopes.

Though we answer separate callings,
Every heart is loyal, sure;
Ever shall we climb together,
We, the class of '64.

JOHN JEKOWSKI

CLASS ORATOR

CLASS ORATION

Less than three years ago, we entered Brighton High as sophomores, most of us with fears and apprehensions. Indeed, we were taking a great step, for we realized, perhaps unconsciously, that our success or failure in future life would depend upon our success or failure in Brighton High. Our graduation from high school would be the final proof of our worth as a citizen in a growing country. And today, on Class Day, we, the students of the Class of 1964, can claim the privilege of having earned that proof of worth.

In looking back on our three unforgettable years at Brighton High, we can recall many memories—not only those of hard work and constant struggling, but also those of new friends and good times. Each of us, I'm sure, will, in his old age, look back upon Brighton High and invariably say, "Ah, yes, high school—those were the good old days!"

Yes, the years have passed quickly; the good times are now mere echoes in the empty classrooms and corridors; the new friends are now adults and go out into the world on their own; and we find ourself, too, facing the world as an adult. But, with this great step, we hold no fears, no apprehensions; for we have eaten of the bread of knowledge, and have drunk of the wine of wisdom; for we have gained vast experience and sagacity from our teachers.

For these, and so many other priceless gifts, do we owe Brighton High and its teachers an undying gratitude. When we go out into the world beyond these doors, each of us will carry a piece of Brighton High, and as we work in this troubled world, as we strive to forward peace and good will for man. As we succeed in overcoming the obstacles before us, we shall proudly renember Brighton High and humbly say, "My success began there."

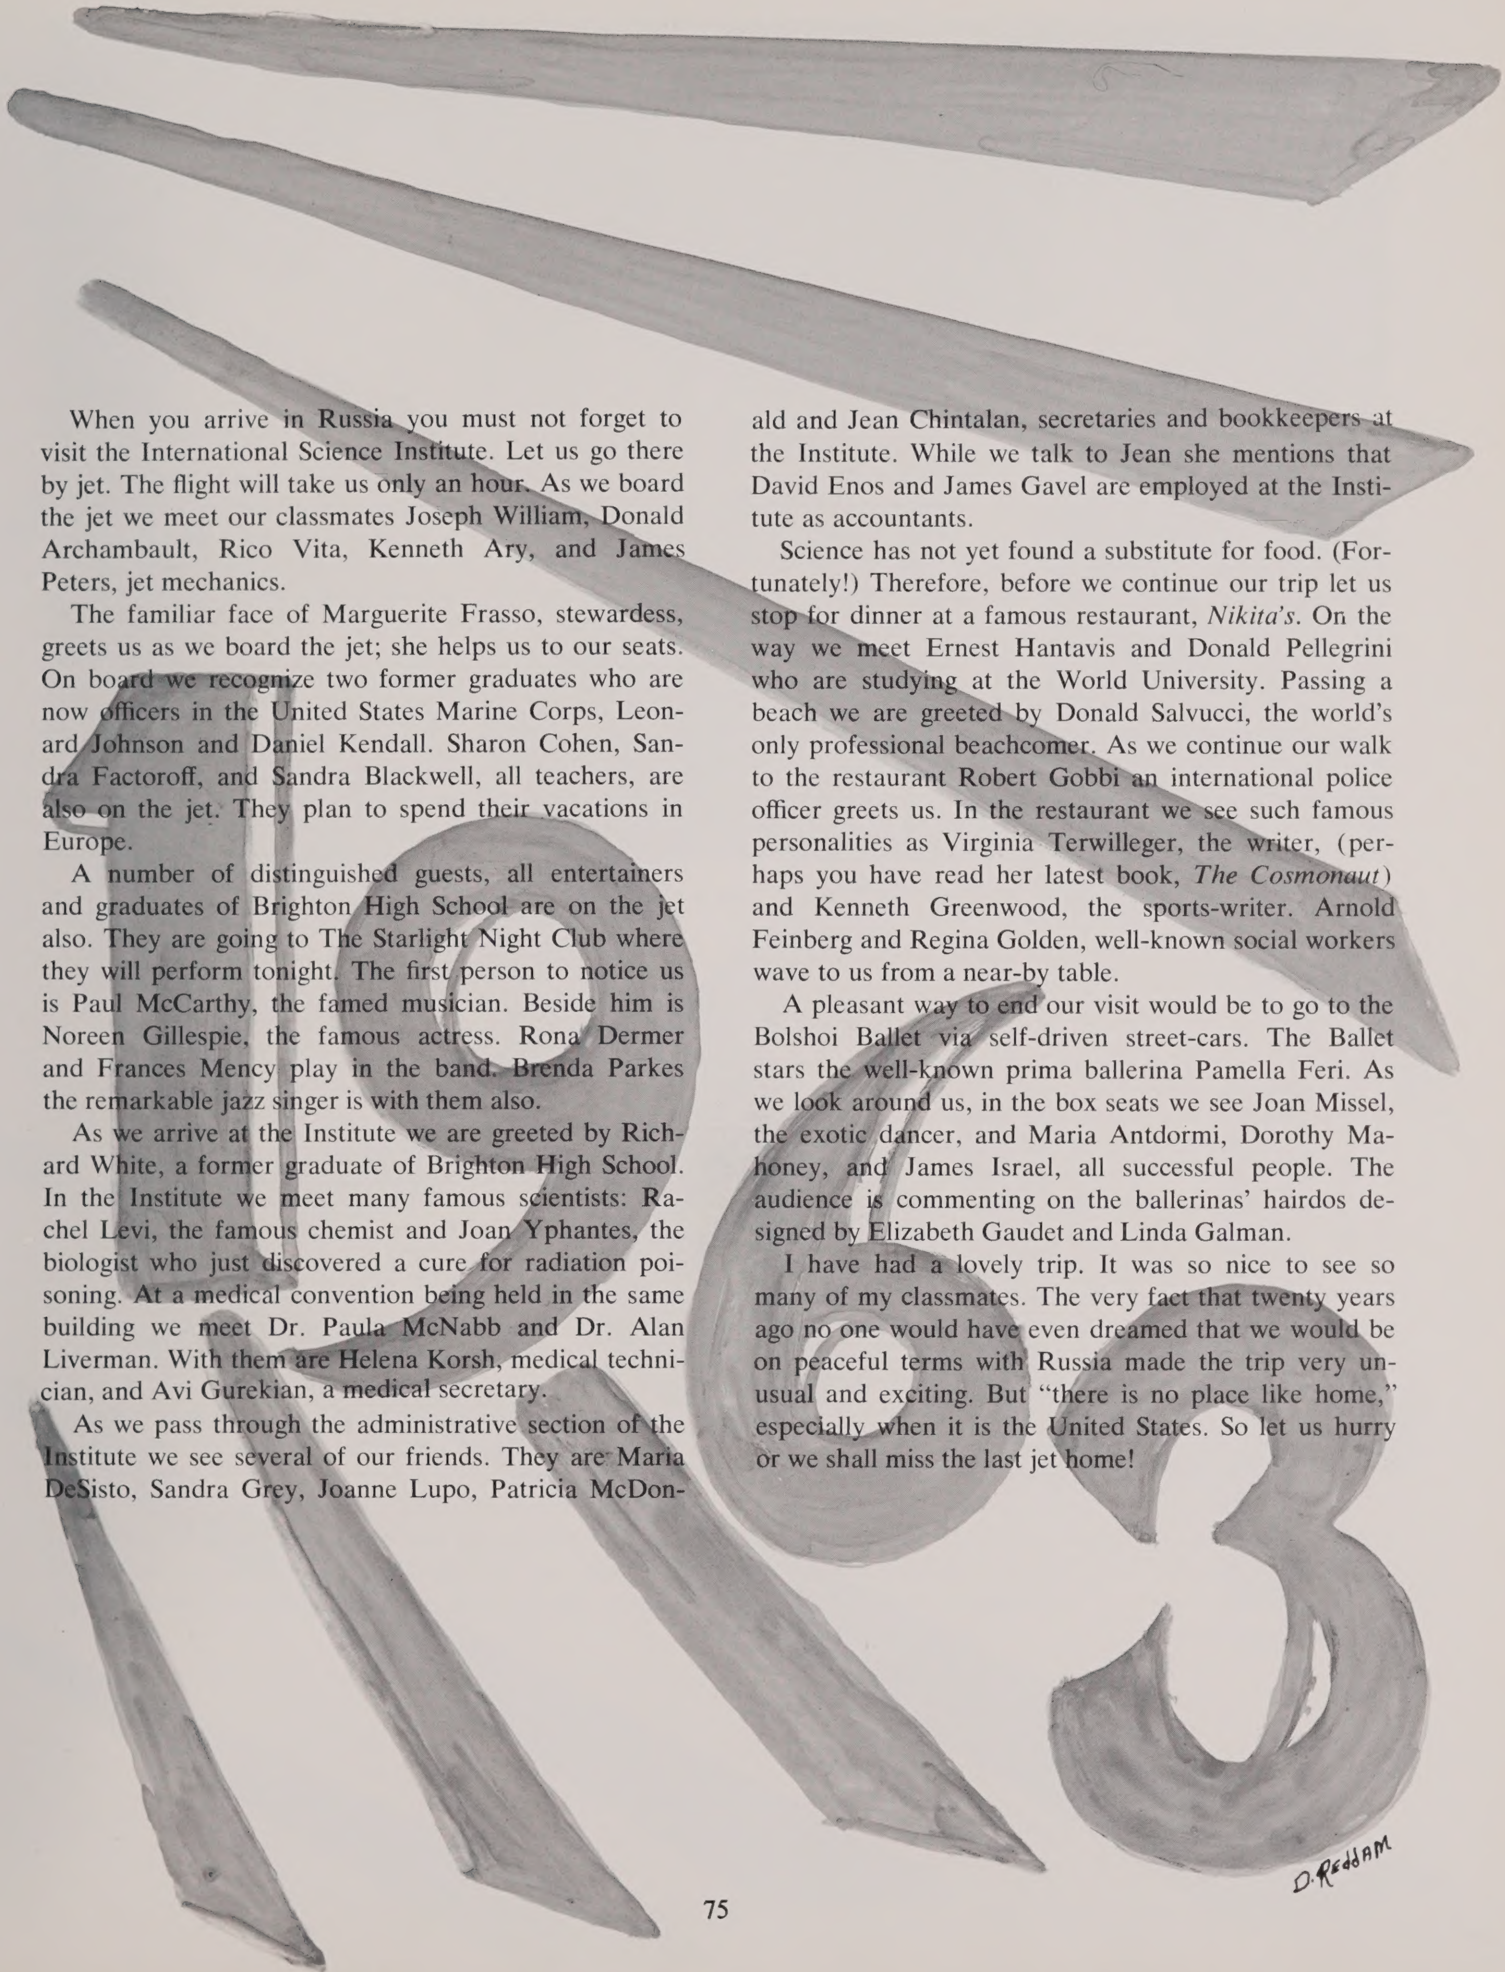
CLASS PROPHECY

Things are different in the year 1984. Actually, the whole world is different. Peaceful co-existence once only a dream is now a reality. This was accomplished largely through the efforts of the dedicated missionary Elizabeth Osborn, assigned to convert Red China to the principles of Democracy. Elizabeth's trip was financed by several business men and millionares from the Class of 1964, John Donovan, Danny Daley, Jon Bowdoin, Leo Harrington, and Keith Willets.

With the help of Carl DiCicco, a very brilliant man, Kathleen Costello, the first woman to become Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, and Ellen Richman, the Secretary of State, inspired by Miss Osborn's success, were able to come to peaceful terms with Russia.

If you are planning a trip, I would recommend Russia. The trip can be made by means of the new trans-Atlantic highway constructed by Esther Gistis and Terrance Pernell, engineers from the Class of 1964. Another classmate, Lana Bingham is accredited with the design of the highway.

Built by Charles Wiseman, Sheldon Trager, Joseph Russell, Daniel Travares, and Dennis Dozier, automotive engineers, ultra-modern air-cars flow along the modern highway. To keep your car in top notch condition you can have it serviced by Jack Peters, Theodore Allen, Edward Zbinski, Richard Abruzzi, Donald Perkins, and Richard Driscoll successful technicians who work at a gas station owned by George Klempa.



When you arrive in Russia you must not forget to visit the International Science Institute. Let us go there by jet. The flight will take us only an hour. As we board the jet we meet our classmates Joseph William, Donald Archambault, Rico Vita, Kenneth Ary, and James Peters, jet mechanics.

The familiar face of Marguerite Frasso, stewardess, greets us as we board the jet; she helps us to our seats. On board we recognize two former graduates who are now officers in the United States Marine Corps, Leonard Johnson and Daniel Kendall. Sharon Cohen, Sandra Factoroff, and Sandra Blackwell, all teachers, are also on the jet. They plan to spend their vacations in Europe.

A number of distinguished guests, all entertainers and graduates of Brighton High School are on the jet also. They are going to The Starlight Night Club where they will perform tonight. The first person to notice us is Paul McCarthy, the famed musician. Beside him is Noreen Gillespie, the famous actress. Rona Dermer and Frances Mency play in the band. Brenda Parkes the remarkable jazz singer is with them also.

As we arrive at the Institute we are greeted by Richard White, a former graduate of Brighton High School. In the Institute we meet many famous scientists: Rachel Levi, the famous chemist and Joan Yphantes, the biologist who just discovered a cure for radiation poisoning. At a medical convention being held in the same building we meet Dr. Paula McNabb and Dr. Alan Liverman. With them are Helena Korsh, medical technician, and Avi Gurekian, a medical secretary.

As we pass through the administrative section of the Institute we see several of our friends. They are Maria DeSisto, Sandra Grey, Joanne Lupo, Patricia McDonald and Jean Chintalan, secretaries and bookkeepers at the Institute. While we talk to Jean she mentions that David Enos and James Gavel are employed at the Institute as accountants.

Science has not yet found a substitute for food. (Fortunately!) Therefore, before we continue our trip let us stop for dinner at a famous restaurant, Nikita's. On the way we meet Ernest Hantavis and Donald Pellegrini who are studying at the World University. Passing a beach we are greeted by Donald Salvucci, the world's only professional beachcomer. As we continue our walk to the restaurant Robert Gobbi an international police officer greets us. In the restaurant we see such famous personalities as Virginia Terwilleger, the writer, (perhaps you have read her latest book, The Cosmonaut) and Kenneth Greenwood, the sports-writer. Arnold Feinberg and Regina Golden, well-known social workers wave to us from a near-by table.

A pleasant way to end our visit would be to go to the Bolshoi Ballet via self-driven street-cars. The Ballet stars the well-known prima ballerina Pamella Feri. As we look around us, in the box seats we see Joan Missel, the exotic dancer, and Maria Antdormi, Dorothy Mahoney, and James Israel, all successful people. The audience is commenting on the ballerinas' hairdos designed by Elizabeth Gaudet and Linda Galman.

I have had a lovely trip. It was so nice to see so many of my classmates. The very fact that twenty years ago no one would have even dreamed that we would be on peaceful terms with Russia made the trip very unusual and exciting. But "there is no place like home," especially when it is the United States. So let us hurry or we shall miss the last jet home!

CLASS HISTORY

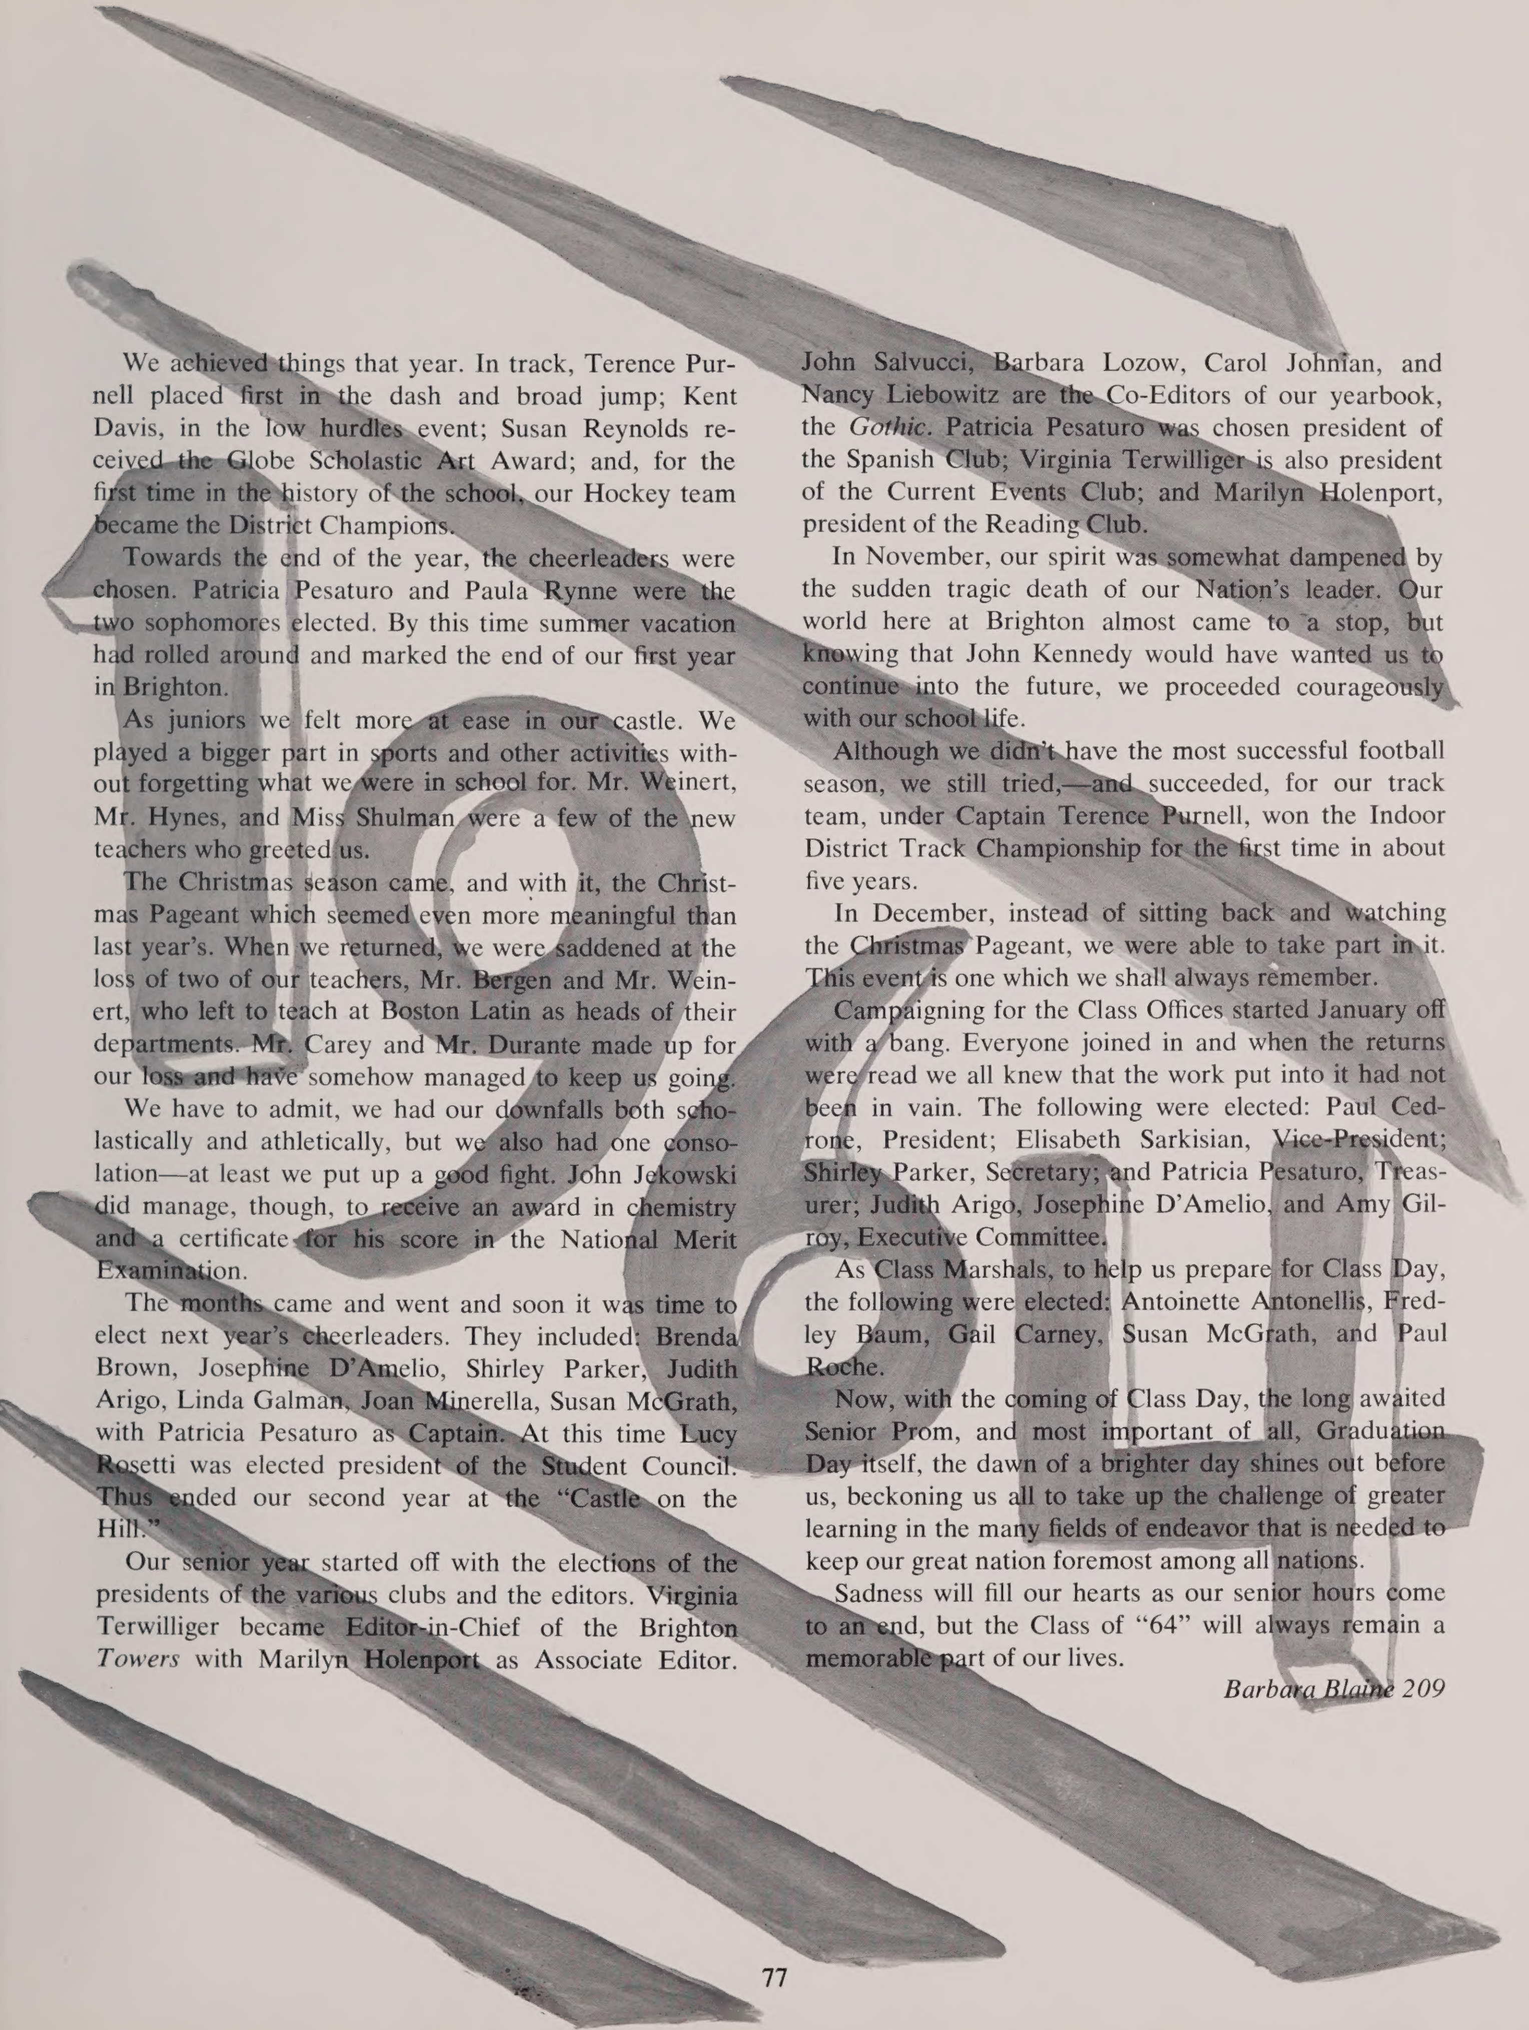
CLASS OF "64"

Did you ever have the feeling that you would never get there? That these last three years would never come to an end? Well, relax seniors—we've made it! With graduation just around the corner, we have many happy and fond memories of Brighton High to look back upon.

Like everyone who entered here in the past, we, too, were scared of the work facing us, helpless, lost in an enormous castle, bewildered at what to expect; but we pushed on, determined to reach our goals.

It didn't take long to get in the swim of things. We were soon acquainted with our teachers and with many other students. The Towers, French Club, Spanish Club and sports were a few of the activities in which we were able to participate.

In December, we saw, for the first time, one of Brighton's main events—the traditional Christmas Pageant. Discovering that this was one of the seniors' activities, we were given another event to look forward to when we reach the top.



We achieved things that year. In track, Terence Purnell placed first in the dash and broad jump; Kent Davis, in the low hurdles event; Susan Reynolds received the Globe Scholastic Art Award; and, for the first time in the history of the school, our Hockey team became the District Champions.

Towards the end of the year, the cheerleaders were chosen. Patricia Pesaturo and Paula Rynne were the two sophomores elected. By this time summer vacation had rolled around and marked the end of our first year in Brighton.

As juniors we felt more at ease in our castle. We played a bigger part in sports and other activities without forgetting what we were in school for. Mr. Weinert, Mr. Hynes, and Miss Shulman were a few of the new teachers who greeted us.

The Christmas season came, and with it, the Christmas Pageant which seemed even more meaningful than last year's. When we returned, we were saddened at the loss of two of our teachers, Mr. Bergen and Mr. Weinert, who left to teach at Boston Latin as heads of their departments. Mr. Carey and Mr. Durante made up for our loss and have somehow managed to keep us going.

We have to admit, we had our downfalls both scholastically and athletically, but we also had one consolation—at least we put up a good fight. John Jekowski did manage, though, to receive an award in chemistry and a certificate for his score in the National Merit Examination.

The months came and went and soon it was time to elect next year's cheerleaders. They included: Brenda Brown, Josephine D'Amelio, Shirley Parker, Judith Arigo, Linda Galman, Joan Minerella, Susan McGrath, with Patricia Pesaturo as Captain. At this time Lucy Rosetti was elected president of the Student Council. Thus ended our second year at the "Castle on the Hill."

Our senior year started off with the elections of the presidents of the various clubs and the editors. Virginia Terwilliger became Editor-in-Chief of the Brighton Towers with Marilyn Holenport as Associate Editor. John Salvucci, Barbara Lozow, Carol Johnian, and Nancy Liebowitz are the Co-Editors of our yearbook, the Gothic. Patricia Pesaturo was chosen president of the Spanish Club; Virginia Terwilliger is also president of the Current Events Club; and Marilyn Holenport, president of the Reading Club.

In November, our spirit was somewhat dampened by the sudden tragic death of our Nation's leader. Our world here at Brighton almost came to a stop, but knowing that John Kennedy would have wanted us to continue into the future, we proceeded courageously with our school life.

Although we didn't have the most successful football season, we still tried,—and succeeded, for our track team, under Captain Terence Purnell, won the Indoor District Track Championship for the first time in about five years.

In December, instead of sitting back and watching the Christmas Pageant, we were able to take part in it. This event is one which we shall always remember.

Campaigning for the Class Offices started January off with a bang. Everyone joined in and when the returns were read we all knew that the work put into it had not been in vain. The following were elected: Paul Cedrone, President; Elisabeth Sarkisian, Vice-President; Shirley Parker, Secretary; and Patricia Pesaturo, Treasurer; Judith Arigo, Josephine D'Amelio, and Amy Gilroy, Executive Committee.

As Class Marshals, to help us prepare for Class Day, the following were elected: Antoinette Antonellis, Fredley Baum, Gail Carney, Susan McGrath, and Paul Roche.

Now, with the coming of Class Day, the long awaited Senior Prom, and most important of all, Graduation Day itself, the dawn of a brighter day shines out before us, beckoning us all to take up the challenge of greater learning in the many fields of endeavor that is needed to keep our great nation foremost among all nations.

Sadness will fill our hearts as our senior hours come to an end, but the Class of "64" will always remain a memorable part of our lives.
